

Requirements for Using BlueJeans

BlueJeans is a cloud-based system to connect your computer to the seminary system. BlueJeans allows you to connect from anywhere in the world, as long as you have an internet connection. Since BlueJeans is a video-conferencing host for class meetings, there are some basic details you need to know before joining your first class.

The CIV Department will be your point of contact for joining a BlueJeans meeting and when problems arise. They can be contacted at civ@nobts.edu or (504) 816-8431.

You will receive two emails from the CIV Department. The first email will give the link to the meeting with the meeting ID number. A second email will set up a testing time with the NOBTS CIV office.

What do I need to use BlueJeans within the NOBTS system?

- Ethernet cable connection (WiFi is not acceptable). The Ethernet cable connects from back of modem or router to your computer.
- A Webcam (laptops have built-in webcam)
- A headset with a microphone
- A quiet place with limited distractions

What are the guidelines for communicating on BlueJeans?

- There is a one-second delay from the time anyone speaks.
- Remember to keep your microphone muted when you are not speaking to the class.
- Let the speaker know if you cannot hear them, so they can adjust their volume.
- Contact the CIV department for assistance immediately if you are having problems. They can be contacted at civ@nobts.edu or (504) 816-8431.
